

Henrietta Glass

Jill Henrietta Davis:

In 1988, after experimenting with many different materials and art forms, Jill was introduced to the wonders of molten glass and immediately fell under its spell. After 30 years, she remains as smitten as ever. She feels that glass can do things that would be impossible with any other material. Although the learning process is quite difficult, once she gained fluency, blowing glass was just plain fun. Jill conveys this fun by blending humor with fine craftsmanship in her designs.
